AIA Announces Big Move

AIA's Board of Directors ratified a bold resolution outlining the decisive action the association will take on climate change over the coming decades. Introduced at the 2019 Conference on Architecture by Betsy del Monte, FAIA, and fifty other members, the resolution is a way of formalizing leadership around climate action in the architectural community, according to AIA CEO Robert Ivy, FAIA. Howard Smith 1935-2019

Howard Patterson Smith was born in Plattsburg, New York on September 21st 1935, to Festus and Helen Smith. He graduated from Willsboro High School in New York, and after serving in the Army, he graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (where he was president of the Theta Chi Fraternity) with a degree in Architecture.

In 1961 Howard married Suzanne Staley and moved to Salem where he began his career as an architect. Howard became a partner in the firm Payne, Settecase and Smith, which later became Settecase, Smith and Doss before morphing into Architects Four, a partnership of Smith, Doss, Bishoprick, and McDermott.

His involvement in the design of the Salem Civic Center complex, the Salem Memorial Hospital, and bringing the Reed Opera House back to life in the early 1980s are examples of some of his work.

Howard also worked on the original Agriculture Building on the Capitol Mall and years later its remodel after being flooded. He worked on a number of projects on the Willamette University campus, and numerous others including Owen's Hall on the OSU campus, Oregon Freeze Dry Foods, the Oregon Capitol Seismic Upgrade, Claggett Creek Middle School, Salem Hospital Outpatient Clinic, and the Chemeketa Viticulture Center.

Green Champion Summit 2019

This year's Green Champion Summit brings together Design Professionals, Developers, Consultants and Zero Energy Advocates to present on the value (both financial and existential) of Net Zero initiatives by looking at opportunities, incentives and case studies. Presenters will discuss approaches to budgetary hurdles to achieving Net Zero and insights into leveraging available incentives and calculating long-term payoffs versus up-front costs to help clients understand the long term costs. They will also discuss paths to achieving Net Zero at different scales and the long term value that Net Zero projects offer our clients and communities.
